

ABSTRACT

A suspended, coupled micromachined structure including two proof masses and multiple support arms configured to suspend the masses above a substrate and a coupling spring element having two ends. Each end of the coupling spring element may 5 be attached to a proof mass at a point between the proof masses. The frequency response characteristics of the proof masses may be improved.